BULLETIN
Paris, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The home-ward bound dirigible Graf Zeppelin reached the French coast from Lakehurst, N. J. late today flying over Nantes at 6:43 p. m. (1:43 p. m. Eastern Standard time.)

At that time the huge ship, which is completing the first round trip commercial trans-Atlantic air voyage, had been in the air 59 hours and 59 minutes.
She still had about 900 miles to go before reaching Friedrichshafen, her home port where she was expected at the earliest at 3 o'clock tomorrow morning.

BULLETIN
Le Bourget, France, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin informed the Le Bourget flying field late today that she expected to strike the French coast in the vicinity of Nantes about 7 p. m. Greenwich Meridian time (2 p. m. Eastern Standard time).
The great air liner, rapidly approaching the end of homeward flight from Lakehurst, N. J., to Friedrichshafen, notified the flying field that she was traveling at a rate of 60 miles an hour. The boisterous weather over the Bay of Biscay was abating.
Nantes is midway between Bordeaux and Brest on the western coast of France, and is on a direct line to Friedrichshafen.
Aviation experts expressed the opinion that the Graf Zeppelin would fly over central France, passing over the cities of Nantes, Lyons, Dijon and Basel with the likelihood that she would reach Friedrichshafen about daybreak tomorrow morning.

Sec. of State During War Died Suddenly Tuesday

ROBERT LANSING

Who directed diplomatic relations of United States just prior to and during the World War, died at his home in Washington Tuesday afternoon as the result of a heart attack. So completely had Mr. Lansing withdrawn from public life, following his break with President Wilson, which brought about his resignation as Secretary of State, that few knew of his sickness. He was an authority on international law.

Broken Neck Cause of Mrs. Owen's Death

Mrs. D. L. Palmer has received a newspaper clipping telling of the tragic death of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Gladys George Owen, of San Francisco, formerly of Dixon, which was mentioned briefly in The Telegraph recently. The newspaper states that while walking with a friend, Mrs. Charles Kramer, Mrs. Owen was knocked down by a big collie dog, which dashed from a yard in chase of an automobile, suffering a broken neck which caused her death the following day, four days after the death of her father, Charles Henry George, also formerly of Dixon. Mr. George was 73 years of age at the time of his death, Oct. 19.

ALL SET FOR DIXON'S FESTIVAL

THREE DAYS OF FUN, SPORTS ARE PROVIDED

Most of Stores to Remain Open Evenings of Fall Festival

Dixon's first annual Fall Festival sponsored by the retail merchants starts off tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock with a band concert by the St. Charles Boys' band. The merchants will finish decorating their business places by tonight and every merchant is giving this feature of the festival his best efforts. Some of the display windows are very pretty. Scattered about the downtown streets are shocks of fodder and pumpkins everywhere. All is in readiness to handle the thousands that will visit Dixon Thursday, Friday and Saturday. School children are bringing in their essays; farmer boys and girls are bringing their ears of corn for exhibit at the corn exhibition. A large amount of spiced advertising has been done and the country for fifty miles around has been made acquainted with the details of the big festival.

If the weather man is good the festival promises to be a wonderful success. It is hoped that he will cooperate with the merchants in doing everything he possibly can to make the affair a success.

Numerous Parades.
School children in the city are making big plans to get into the parade Friday afternoon. The school parade will be worth while seeing. The Grand Parade for tomorrow night is forming now and many inquiries are received at the Chamber of Commerce as to how to enter cars and what to do in order to make the parade a success. There will be many very beautiful floats; many of the participants are expending quite a lot of money in order to make a good showing in the parade. It is expected that many thousands of people will fill the downtown streets while the parade passes through the loop district of the city. The Chamber of Commerce suggests that people obtain programs and keep them ready so as to follow each event as it is pulled off during the three days of the festival.

Mardi Gras Friday.
The Mardi Gras celebration will feature Friday evening's program of the Fall Festival. There is no entry list for contestants, all who desire to compete being invited to don their costumes and mingle with the crowd which will throng the streets of the business section. Prizes will be awarded for both the most comical and most original costumes worn.

The judges will be on the streets observing the merry-makers and those who will be considered as (Continued on page 9)

CHATMAN TRIAL SET FOR FRIDAY MORN, NOV. 9TH

Negro Arraigned Today on Murder Charge Keeps Silence

Ira "Sleepy" Chatman, alleged murderer of Isaiah Jarman, in an argument at a Negro labor camp in Compton shortly before midnight on Saturday, appeared before Judge Harry Edwards in the Circuit Court this morning at 9:30 to be arraigned. State's Attorney Mark C. Keller asked the court for an early trial date. Chatman's attorney asked for time to examine the indictment and prepare his case. Judge Edwards setting the case for trial Friday morning, November 9.
Chatman had nothing to say and after being furnished with a copy of the indictment and a list of the jurors, was taken back to his cell in the county jail by Sheriff Miller, where he is held without bail.
The progress thus far in an effort to secure an immediate trial in the case has met with no delays. The trial date would doubtless have been set for next week, had it not been that the national election falls on Tuesday and the court docket is filled until the following Friday, which resulted in the date for trial being set for November 9.

CHICAGO GROCER SHOT TO DEATH IN AUTOMOBILE

Chicago, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Slumped down in the driver's seat of his own automobile, the body of Vincio Signorelli, 50, a grocer, was found today with a bullet hole through the head.

Police made the discovery after residents of the neighborhood reported an automobile had been parked in an alley all night with the motor running. It was the grocer's car, the killers apparently having shot Signorelli before driving the car in the alley to abandon it and him.

A year ago Signorelli was shot and wounded in St. Louis. He was visiting a daughter at the time and refused to tell police anything about the shooting.

Found Blood Stains.
Signorelli was identified by tracing the license number of the automobile. Blood stains were found on the handles to the front doors of the car and on the front seats. An examination of the body disclosed three bullet wounds in the head. There were four old bullet scars on his abdomen, one of them still bandaged and apparently were the wounds inflicted when the grocer was shot several months ago in St. Louis.

The shooting is believed to have taken place before 8 o'clock last night. A resident of the neighborhood told police she had seen the automobile in the alley as she went out for the evening and noticed it still there when she returned home later.

A number of cancelled checks were found in a pocket of the automobile. All had been made out to cash, except one payable to the indorser by Pietro Piaci for $100.

The body was removed to an undertaking establishment where an inquest was to be held later.

Chicago police said Signorelli had been a grocer in St. Louis until he was driven out by extortionists after a bombing.

TRIO FAILED TO GET COMBINATION OF BANK'S SAFE

Woman One of Robbers Who Held Cashier of Bank at Bay

Argyle, Mich., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Two men and a woman entered the home of Henry Prentiss, cashier of a private bank here last night, held Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss captive more than half the night while they attempted to compel him to open the bank safe and finally shot the banker in the leg, fracturing the bone when he attempted to escape.

While the woman-bandit watched over Mrs. Prentiss the men marched Prentiss to the bank where he told them he did not know the combination. Then they returned him home where the five partook of an early morning breakfast prepared by the woman robber.

Under questioning Prentiss told the robbers that Mrs. Don Herdell, Assistant Cashier, knew the combination of the bank safe and they then escorted him to the Herdell home. Herdell answered the door bell. When one of the robbers shoved a revolver in his face, Herdell hit him and slammed the door. Prentiss, taking advantage of the situation, also struck the bandit and fled. He was shot through the right leg as he ran.

Returning to the Prentiss home, the two men joined their woman companion and fled. They obtained only $13 from the Prentiss home.

Today Prentiss was in a hospital and his wife was under the care of a physician as a result of nerve shock.

Court Adjourned

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Supreme Court adjourned until December today without passing upon the case involving the validity of Cook County's special grand jury.

ASKS DIXONITES TO GET NUMBER OF LOW FLYER

The unidentified pilot of an airplane which has been flying perilously low over Dixon morning and evenings for the past several weeks, is in for some trouble if the number of the plane can be obtained, and United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson of Chicago, in a letter to Attorney George C. Dixon of this city, asks that Dixon citizens make a special effort to ascertain the plane's number, painted on the underside of the wings, and report it at once.

Realizing that the flyer's practice of driving his plane over this city at a height which narrowly misses trees and chimneys on taller dwellings was exceedingly dangerous, Attorney Dixon wrote the federal attorney, asking the provisions of the Air Commerce Act. Attorney Johnson replied by saying he had sent a copy of the Dixon complaint to the inspector of the Department of Commerce at the Municipal Airport, Chicago, and also giving the provisions of the federal Air Commerce Act.

"Height over congested and other areas, exclusive of taking off from or landing on an established landing field, airport, or on property designated for that purpose by the owner, aircraft shall not be flown—"

"(1)—Over the congested parts of cities, towns or settlements, except at a height sufficient to permit of a reasonably safe emergency landing, which in no case shall be less than 1,000 feet.

"(2)—Elsewhere at a height less than 500 feet, except where indispensable to an industrial flying operation."

The law prescribed a civil penalty of $500 for violation of these regulations.

Attorney Johnson adds that if, upon investigation, it develops that the plane is an air mail plane, the air service will see to it that the dangerous flying does not recur.

Terse Items of News Gathered in Dixon During Day

SCOUTS TO MOBILIZE

All Scouts are to mobilize for the Fall Festival to report at the Dixon Parking Station at 4:30 p. m. in full uniform. This is a very important civic affair and all scouts should be there. Those who cannot be there in the afternoon are to come at 6:30 p. m.

SPOKE OF "DANGER"

Attorney Martin J. Gannon gave a very interesting address at the regular weekly meeting of the Dixon Kiwanis club Tuesday noon, taking as his subject, "The Danger at the Door." The speaker's remarks dealt with the injection of communist ideas into the United States, and added that fifteen of the states would vote upon a ticket launched by this party at next week's general election.

PAID FINE OF $10

Andrew Botjansky of Summit, Ill., was arraigned before Police Magistrate A. E. Simonson this morning and paid a fine of $10 and costs assessed against him on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by Elmer Underhill of this city. Botjansky was arrested in Summit last week and brought back to Dixon on a charge of driving an automobile in an intoxicated condition. This charge was withdrawn and the minor charge preferred, Botjansky standing the amount of damages to the Underhill car which figured in a wreck at Amboy in September.

CAR BADLY WRECKED

A Ford coupe driven by Joseph Eubrick, who resides east of the city at the Black Hawk Trail, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Eubrick, was almost completely demolished in a wreck in front of the Adam Fassi store this morning about 7 o'clock. The body of the car was a mass of twisted steel and splintered wood, out of which the driver and his younger brother crawled with only a few minor cuts, scratches and bruises.

The car was coming toward Dixon and crashed into a truck which was turning off the road. The coupe had to be hauled to a local garage.

HOW JURY STOOD

During a recess in the special grand jury's investigation into Saturday night's fatal shooting in the Negro labor camp at Compton yesterday afternoon, one of the members suggested that a straw vote be taken on the presidential candidates. Robert R. Phillips, former Sheriff of Lee county and Dixon resident, was not missed in the straw vote which resulted as follows:

Hoover, 16; Smith, 4; Phillips, 3.

BOYS, BE CAREFUL!

Destructive Halloween pranks in many parts of the city were reported to the police last evening, in some of which property was damaged. Down town display windows which had been especially trimmed for the Fall Festival celebration were disfigured this morning with soap streaks, the work of one element that from all appearances was quite active.

Steps have been taken to make this Halloween a safe and sane one, by the addition of unnamed special officers to the police force, who will be on duty throughout tonight. Every part of the city is to be patrolled and the officers have been ordered to arrest any persons who may be destroying or damaging property in any way. The defacing of downtown decorations and windows will also receive the close attention of all of the officers. Depredations committed last evening are responsible for the order which has been issued by Chief Van Bibber and violations will be prosecuted regardless of Halloween.

LOST RIGHT EYE

Manie Johnson, a farmer residing near Walnut, was the victim of a most unusual accident last evening which cost him his right eye. Mr. Johnson was engaged in splitting kindling at his home in the night when he was struck by a stick of wood. After receiving first aid, he was taken to the Dixon public hospital, where an examination disclosed that the sight had been destroyed and it was necessary to remove the optic.

Sgt. Kempster's Car Damaged in Mishap

Sergeant Buck Kempster's Chrysler coupe was badly damaged Friday night while he was patrolling the highway near Champaign-Urbana. Three Chicago men in a Lincoln touring car enroute to the university to attend the homecoming, applied the brakes too heavily on their car while making a turn in the highway and the car skidded and crashed into the local officer's car. Fortunately no one was injured.

EXPLANATION DISBELIEVED BY OFFICERS

Elfrieda Knaak Quit Talking When She is "Cornered"

Lake Bluff, Ill., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Self-torture by fire to prove her faith in a "spirit love" was advanced today to explain the strange case of Miss Elfrieda Knaak, 30 year-old Sunday school teacher and book agent.

It was a weird, uncanny explanation, full of holes and wide open to practical-minded police skepticism; but it came from the lips of Miss Knaak herself, lying near death from burns mysteriously inflicted in the basement of the Lake Bluff police station sometime Monday night.

Physicians were unconvinced. "To believe her story," said Dr. J. Risinger, attending her, "you would have to believe these facts:

"That she first placed one foot, then the other, in the furnace and kept them there for some little time; that she thrust in head and arms and held them there under what certainly must have been terrific pain. The fire box is only 12 1/2 by 8 1/2 inches.

Seems Impossible

"It does not seem possible that a person even in a trance, could do that. Muscular reaction alone would cause her to jump back from the flames."

The name of Charles W. Hitchcock, 45 years old, married and the father of four children, was brought into the case by Miss Knaak, who during the night frequently cried out: "Hitch, oh Hitch. Why don't you come to me?"

"Who did this?" said the State's Attorney, bending over the girl's cot. "I did it myself, for faith, for purity," was the response. At intervals, the officers obtained her story. She had known Hitchcock four years, she said, having studied elocution and salesmanship in classes he conducts here.

"No Material Love"

"A few months ago I got to know him spiritually," she was quoted as saying. "This was no material love affair. Advanced psychology made me understand him. For weeks I have been hearing his voice saying, 'have faith; have faith.'"

"I had an appointment with him Monday night. He did not keep it. (Hitchcock, who besides being a teacher is night policeman of Lake Bluff, has been confined to his home with a broken leg for a week. When he did not appear, I again heard his voice, urging me to have faith. "To prove my faith, I thought of the fire. I removed my clothes and burned them. I burned myself. "I survived. I proved my faith, and I'll live. Be sure of this: I knew I would survive."

Hitchcock, his leg in a cast, was unable to clear up the girl's story. "Poor girl if she had a crush on me, I certainly didn't know it," he said.

Sought His Advice

Hitchcock said Miss Knaak came to him four years ago to study salesmanship and elocution. Since finishing the course she has occasionally communicated with him, Hitchcock said, seeking his advice on problems confronting her.

Hitchcock conducts his classes in the morning hours, working as night policeman from 1 P. M. to 1 A. M. One theory under investigation was that Miss Knaak, not knowing of his injury, had gone to the police station Monday evening to await his arrival after his official rounds. The station is closed at night, but Miss Knaak was presumed to have had a key, as did many other persons.

It is possible, police said, that she may have gone to the furnace room for warmth, and that she may have been attacked by some vagrant who himself had gotten into the basement to keep warm during the chilly night. Physicians said the burns probably were inflicted shortly before the young woman was discovered by the janitor, about 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

Found Standing Up

The janitor found Miss Knaak standing up, her face and body blackened by the fire. Her forearms were burned to the bone, her hair was burned from her head, and the heat had seared the flesh of her forehead through to the skull. She was leaning against a pipe by the furnace when the janitor saw her, and (Continued on page 2)

EXPLANATION

the sight sent him running upstairs, screaming for help.

Hitchcock was appointed night policeman four years ago when his health made it necessary to leave the stage, where he appeared in vaudeville and the movies, where he acted character roles.

Miss Knaak, whose home is with her widowed mother in Deerfield, Ill., has studied at the Universities of Illinois and Chicago and at the State Normal School in Ypsilanti, Mich. It was while teaching in Waukegan, Ill., that she first began the study of elocution with Hitchcock.

Chris Louis, employee of the village of Lake Bluff, today gave reporters a detailed description of finding the girl.

Told of Discovery

He said he was not employed regularly to stoke the furnace in the basement but that yesterday morning Chief of Police Rosenhagen asked him to do so. The Chief usually tends the furnace, he said.

Louis said he started to descend into the basement and found the electric light there was out of order. As a result he said the basement was in semi-darkness.

He said he had descended about half way when he saw a nude form reeling against a second furnace which was not in use. The form with blackened arms, legs and head seemed to be motioning to him he said and stumbling about the basement.

Louis said he thought he had seen a ghost and rushed upstairs without further investigation. The Chief was gone, he said, adding that he found him outside the city hall and they went back together.

Here the Chief took up the story. He said he descended into the basement and found the girl lying on the floor, naked and unable to talk. He said he was positive the woman had possessed a key to the village hall but did not reveal how he knew this.

He said the ashes in the furnace had been sifted but the key had not been found. On a theory that the woman had tossed the key away after unlocking a door to the building, the grounds around the village hall were being searched today.

Miss Knaak today stuck to her story that she had burned herself despite much doubt concerning it by the authorities.

George Hargreaves, private detective employed as an investigator by Lake County, visited the girl at the hospital where she appeared rational today.

Told of Burning
Hargreaves said she told him she went to the village hall and entered by a back door but did not know why she had gone there. Hargreaves said she told him she went to the basement and removed and burned her clothes, then thrust her right foot through the furnace door. She then placed her arms and shoulders in the door and entered the live coals.

The detective said she told him that her feet were bleeding and she was suffering great pain and she stumbled to the door by which she had entered, intending to leave, but found it locked. Asked how it could have been locked when she said she entered by this door, she said it had been locked by a "mysterious hand" and refused to talk further.

Women Will Sue for Title to Memorial

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 31—(AP)—The Atlanta Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy has decided to bring suit to obtain title to property on which Stone Mountain Memorial is being carved.

In a resolution adopted yesterday, the U. D. C. Chapter said that suit should establish their claim to the property, inasmuch as Sam H. Venable, who originally deeded it to Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental Association conditionally had given the Atlanta Chapter title by reversion.

The resolution asserted that the association had forfeited title because of its failure to complete the memorial within 12 years from the date of its deed.

BLIMP 'RESCUED' BALLOONIST ON WATERS OF LAKE

Scott Field Officers Landed TC-51 on Lake Surface

Scott Field, Ill., Oct. 31—(AP)—A demonstration of lighter-than-air craft rescuing stranded balloonists clinging to wreckage was made on Horseshoe Lake, near East St. Louis yesterday, by the TC-51, U. S. Army non-rigid dirigible. Another purpose of the demonstration was to show a landing could be made on water without a ground crew.

An ordinary type of free balloon was taken to the lake shore on a truck and inflated. It was then taken to the center of the lake with Lieut. Ralph E. Holmes clinging to it. The TC-51, under command of Lieut. Edward H. White, flew over the lake, training a weighted rope, which was caught by the marooned balloonist. An inflated rubber boat, attached to the rope, was dropped, and Lieut. Holmes pulled it to him, and then paddled free of the bag.

The dirigible circled before alighting on its pontoons, 150 feet away from the "wreckage." The pontoons, only three by four feet in size, are rubber and inflated to absorb shock when landing. They supported the dirigible while Lieut. Holmes was pulled ashore. Two anchors were used to hold the TC-51 while Lieut. Holmes changed clothing. The dirigible regained the air without trouble and returned here.

"The demonstration was carried out as planned," Lieut. White said, "and shows the availability of lighter-than-air craft for rescue work."

Vote yes on the 20 Million Dollar Bond Issue, Nov. 6. The entire cost is paid by hunting and fishing licenses. 11

MENU for the FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Peaches, cereal, creamed codfish on croutons, crumb pancakes, syrup, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Noodle soup, casserole of cauliflower and cheese, whole wheat bread, apple sauce, molasses bars, milk, tea.
DINNER—Casserole of chicken, mashed potatoes, buttered carrots, prune and pineapple salad, pumpkin pie, milk, coffee.

Casserole of Cauliflower and Cheese

One medium-sized head cauliflower, 1 cup milk, 1 cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, 2 eggs, ½ cup fine dried bread crumbs, ½ cup grated cheese, 1 teaspoon paprika.
Trim cauliflower and divide into flowerets. Let stand in cold salted water for one hour. Drain and cook in milk and water seasoned with salt for 20 minutes. Drain cauliflower from liquid. Rub butter and flour together until smooth and stir into milk and water in which cauliflower was cooked and bring mixture to the boiling point, stirring constantly. Beat eggs and dip each sprig of cauliflower into eggs and then into crumbs and cheese thoroughly mixed. Arrange in casserole and add any left-over beaten egg to hot sauce. Pour sauce over cauliflower in casserole and bake fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Serve from casserole.

POINTERS FOR PARENTS

Vegetables are good, vegetables are necessary, vegetables are vital in a small child's menu, but in our mad chase for vitamins let us not lose sight of the fact that other things are quite as important in building up health and tissue as spinach and carrots.

Besides there are three kinds of vitamins and not all of them are found in vegetables.
Milk, of course, should be the basis of diet for all small children. Even after they have attained the dignity of three year olds and solid food, milk should be continued plentifully through all their growing years.

Fats, starches, proteins and minerals are necessary to make up a balanced diet.

Fish or Butter Fats
Fats are very important. They are contained in large amounts in milk, but are also found in egg yolk, butter or butter substitutes, vegetable or nut oils, and fish oils. So valuable are the latter in a small child's diet that cod-liver oil has been added almost universally to the feeding of babies as young as one or two months old. It is, of course, given in very small quantities at first and suowly increased.

Egg yolks are coming into prominence for additional feeding of small children. They are rich, not only in fats, but in calcium and iron, both valuable as tissue builders. They are usually included in the diet of children ten months or a year old. Just what the advantage is over a whole cod-liver oil has been added almost universally to the feeding of babies as young as one or two months old. It is, of course, given in very small quantities at first and suowly increased.

However the good old-fashioned codliver or soft boiled egg is very nourishing and makes a safe addition to almost any child's dinner list.
Starches are necessary to the diet. They make up the bulk of a child's food, and can be digested much more easily by him than by an adult. Cereals are rich in starches; cooked cereals being better for a child up to 14 months. As this menu grows, he may have potato, rice and well-cooked macaroni. Uncooked starch, such as that contained in bananas, should not be given to children.

Body Needs Sugar
A child should have sugar. It is a mistake not to give it to him; it should be given in his food or at end of a meal. One or two ounces a day is not too much for a child up to six.

Oranges, prunes and canned tomatoes (uncooked) are rich in calcium. Iron is found in spinach and other vegetables also in egg yolk, beef juice, lean beef, graham or whole wheat bread and fruits. A child may have a little scraped beef or beef juice, after he is about 14 months old.

All children are different. Probably no two can be fed exactly alike. But this should be borne in mind. Children need variety—or what we now call a balanced diet. It is not a wise idea for mothers to be swayed too much by enthusiasts who harp on one string. And I should not wait for a case of measles to bring in the doctor. I should consult him every once in awhile about the food the children should eat.

Delightful Masquerade Party Sunday Eve

Miss Lois Weitzel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Weitzel entertained fifteen guests on Saturday evening with a Halloween party. The house was beautifully decorated with pumpkins, leaves and other pretty and appropriate decorations. Games and music were features of the happy evening. A lunch in keeping with Halloween was served and a good time was enjoyed by all.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SULLOVED

The lovely eyes of Queen Marie of Rumania wept tears as large as her priceless pearls, tears for the whole world to see, when her oldest son, Prince Carol, next in line for the throne, renounced that throne, his kingdom, his family and his people, for love of a commoner whom he would not yield for all the thrones in the world.

Queen Marie, now the dowager queen, weeps for the whole world again and holds out hands for its pity as her second son, Prince Nicholas, a member of the regency of three managing affairs of state for the young king, Prince Mihail, throws up his job and flees with his own lady, a Mme. Dumetrescu Tahan.
Prince Nicholas merely mumbles as thousands of lesser youths have mumbled to reproachful and remonstrating parents, that he doesn't like his job; that he does not even care a hoot if the state confiscates his property; that such words as loyalty and doing the hard thing, renunciation, sacrifice, mean nothing compared with the loss of the woman he loves.

What drama for a queen! Her two sons on whom she had pinned her hopes, forsaking her, humiliating her, leaving her with the wreckage!
And yet how does it differ from the story of thousands of parents, mothers of lesser rank, mothers who do not wear pearls and tiaras and court trains and are not called 'Europe's Most Beautiful Queen'.

Queen Marie has only learned what all parents learn sooner or later—that a parent can not control or chart the life of her children; that today's children's lives belong to themselves and not to anyone else, it is the most sheerest folly for a parent to plan that child's life, or to expect that any parent-made plans will ever be carried out.

This parent and child business was a much simpler thing years ago when agriculture world naturally and automatically absorbed the boy into the soil just as it had absorbed the man, his father.

There was no bewildering complex commercial and industrial and business and professional world offering myriad possibilities of escape to the boy who somehow did not fit into the soil.

To be sure, there were a few cities and there were a few boys and girls who trudged away to the place of bright lights with all their worldly possessions tied up in a red bandana. But it was taken for granted as that the sun rises and sets that the boys would stay on the farm with Dad until they married and rented farms of their own, that the girls would stay home and help "Mother" till they married some neighbor's farmer boy, and that sometimes "the children" even when married would just stay on at home and help run the big home place for the consideration of certain fertile acres deeded to them.

The boy who scorned the tradition and left home to take a business college course was censured by parents and the community and the parents dropped their heads in shame a little to think that a child would so publicly flout them.

But times have changed. It's a brave parent, indeed, who dares even plan or hope that the son will continue on with his father's business. The trend of the age is that every individual life is his or her own to do with as he or she sees fit.

Lesser mortals have learned this. Queens have not. So they weep and moan when the inevitable happens.

Sterling Y W C A Had First Swim of Season

The following clipping from the Sterling Gazette shows appreciation of the privileges extended to the Sterling Y. W. C. A. by the Dixon "Y".

Fifteen girls and Miss Ruth Ludeling, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., went to the Dixon Y. M. C. A. swimming pool Monday night for their first swimming class since the pool has been running on the winter schedule. They were pleased with the courtesy of Mrs. Yohn, secretary of the women's physical work at the Dixon Y. M. C. A., who arranged her classes so that the local swimmers might have access to the pool Monday nights from 7 to 8 o'clock.

Miss Ludeling is responsible for every girl from this community who goes to the Dixon pool, and very anxious that they abide by the rules set for the women there. The secretary has made a ruling that the girls must be in the pool by 7 o'clock and out of it at exactly 8 o'clock, in order that they will not interfere with the Dixon women whose classes are before and after that hour.

Hereafter the class will leave the Y. W. C. A. promptly at 6:15 o'clock, and no girls will be allowed to enter the pool unless registered first at the local Y. W. C. A. Registrations for the class should be in by 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

The secretary believes that the new rules governing the swimming class will work out very satisfactorily to the girls as well as to the Dixon Y. M. C. A.

Miss Katherine Page Was Honored Guest

Last evening Mrs. George H. Beier entertained in a most charming manner, honoring her cousin, Miss Katherine Page, of New York City, eldest daughter of Walter Page, well known in Dixon. Miss Page is to be married in Chicago this coming Saturday at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church to Oscar Alexander Olson, Jr.

The happy affair last evening assumed the form of a bridge dinner, at which twelve guests were entertained, all being seated at one table for the dinner. The exquisitely appointed table was all in white, and the flowers were chrysanthemums and ferns. The illumination came from white tapers, all carrying out the bridal theme, as the place cards for the dinner, and the tallies for bridge afterwards, were miniature brides. The dessert course had white icing in the form of wedding bells.

At bridge Mrs. George Bulmer was awarded the favor for high score; Miss Dorothy Palmer receiving the second favor. All present made the guest of honor, Miss Katherine Page, the gift of a lovely guest prize. Out of town guests included the guest of honor, Miss Katherine Page and her sister, Miss Eleanor of New York City; Mrs. George Bulmer and Miss Zelta Swartz of Morrison, Ill.

Republican Women Open Headquarters

The Republican women of Dixon township have opened campaign headquarters in the store room at 114 First street, formerly occupied by Wunderlich's store, and all desiring any information concerning the campaign are invited to seek and obtain the same from the ladies in charge of the headquarters. The room will be open until after election day, and especially during the Fall Festival which starts tomorrow, are visitors invited to make the room their headquarters.

TO SPEAK AT PRAIRIEVILLE P. T. A.—

State's Attorney Mark C. Keller and John H. Byers, secretary to Congressman William R. Johnson, will be the speakers at the meeting of the Prairieville P. T. A. tomorrow evening, and music will be furnished by two Dixon singers, formerly of Palmyra. A full attendance of members and friends of the association is desired.

Dixon Girls Entertain Polo Hi-Y Girls

Tuesday evening the Dixon Girls Hi-Y Club entertained thirty-four members of the Polo Girls Hi-Y Club at the Dixon Y. M. C. A., the affair being of unusual enjoyment. Following a fine supper, which all of the girls enjoyed, a short program was given, which was opened with a talk by Ruth Eberly of Polo, who told of the activities of the club there. A piano solo by Dorothy Prescott and a vocal solo by Ruth Leydig, both of Dixon, preceded the feature of the evening, a description of a recent trip to South America by Mrs. Alice Beeds of this city.

Misses Decker and West Were Hostesses

Miss Edna Decker and Miss Rae West were hostesses on Monday evening to guests for nine tables of bridge at the I. N. U. offices. The high prizes were won by Miss Edith Ayres and John Kelly. Second prizes were won by Mrs. Ralph Gonnemann and Orville Smith. The consolation prize was won by Harold Jamison. Delicious refreshments were served, the Halloween spirit being observed in the menu. A delightful social hour followed the cards and everyone present had a most enjoyable time.

SCIENTIFIC DEFINITION OF INTOXICANTS.

Gov. Smith meets those who say that the only legitimate way out of prohibition is by repeal of the eighteenth amendment, with the proposal that such change be made. He does not desire to stand upon that alone, however. He proposes "immediate relief" by what he calls a "scientific" definition of intoxicating liquor. Anyone who has heard expert medical testimony in court knows there is no such thing as a scientific definition that will stand up any better than the definition now in the statutes.

In the matter of his proposal to amend the constitution to legalize the sale of liquor, we give him credit for sincerity in this hope, but we can not regard it as other than as a desire to place himself in line with those who know that is the only legitimate way out of prohibition, while he first advocates nullification, when he discusses it seriously in his address of acceptance.

The reason we regard it as only a smoke screen of regularity for actions of irregularity is the hopelessness of it within any term or terms he may serve in the presidency.

Amendment of the constitution requires ratification by three-fourths of the states. Thirteen states can prevent change. On the prohibition issue, here they are:

Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas, Oklahoma. These are the states upon which Governor Smith must rely to put him in the white house, and the list does not include Kansas and Maine, which have had prohibition about half a century.

When these states go wet, the eighteenth amendment can be repealed.

So, the proposal to amend the constitution is out. The proposal to amend the Volstead law by a scientific definition of intoxicating liquor is the issue.

In this connection it is interesting to reflect upon the procedure by which one-half of 1 percent became fixed in the law as the test of intoxicating liquor. In territory that was wet up to the time of the eighteenth amendment it probably has not been realized that such has been the government figure for many years. It was not born in the Volstead law. In all territory in which bootleggers operated, in which moonshiners operated, the government had agents working under revenue laws, not under prohibition laws. The government was not concerned about prohibition. It was concerned about revenue. Its revenue officers constantly were running down illicit liquor sold without government license. The test of intoxicating liquor was one-half of 1 percent.

It may be a surprise to many to learn that this figure was fixed by the liquor interests, not by the prohibitionists. For years the federal courts were compelled to wrestle with the question of what constituted intoxicating liquor. Whisky and beer manufacturers were interested in suppressing the moonshiner. Finally a federal judge in a border state, where moonshiners thrived, said in substance to representatives of the liquor interests:

"You are in the liquor business and ought to know something about alcoholic content of intoxicating liquor. Let us quit guessing and fix a scientific definition of intoxicating liquor."

Out of that demand that guessing be ended and something scientific be adopted, the content of intoxicating liquor was fixed at one-half of 1 percent, and the government collected revenue on all liquor of that quality thereafter.

That satisfied the liquor interests as long as they were in competition with the moonshiner, but now we are confronted with a new demand for another "scientific" definition.

President Coolidge has proclaimed a holiday of Thanksgiving for the last Thursday in November. It was nice of him to think of that.

Queen Marie of Rumania was reported ill with influenza the other day. Gosh, maybe it's coming back in style.

One man in England tried to send a message to Mars the other day; another announced he had defeated gravity by making a metal suspend itself in the air. Looks as if the decay of the Island Empire had set in for sure.

Nine guests whose wealth totaled more than ten billions of dollars dined at the same table in New York the other night. Maybe this was a serious conference—do you suppose their wives have asked for new fur coats?

Lady Astor, American-born member of the House of Commons, was mentioned as a possible choice for a post in the British cabinet the other day. That's hardly possible, however—Lady Astor has a sense of humor.

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The Tynmites all sat around till on the door there came a sound. "Hey, Tynmites, you'd better go to sleep," a loud voice said. "To stay up late is very wrong, so hop in bed where you belong." "All right," replied the Tynmites. And they crawled right into bed.

When Clowny woke at early morn, he tooted loudly on a horn. "Wake up," said he, "'Tis Halloween. Come on, let's have some fun. We've made nice things to do queer tricks. Oh, listen how my tick-tack ticks. Wake up, you lazy Tynmites, it's time our sport's begun."

The Scouty jumped right out of bed. "Oh, you're all wrong," he sharply said. "We should not have our Halloween until quite late to night. When darkness spreads around the sky, and there is no bright sun on high, we'll turn loose on our funny pranks, and do them all up right." Wee Copy added, "Yes, he's right. We ought to wait until tonight." And Carpy, too, agreed that that was just the thing to do. So, through the day they slept and ate. They found it rather hard to wait. At last the stars came peeping forth, up in the sky of blue. "Let's go," cried Clowny. "Night is here. Now, first of all we'll sneak up near to Mister Captain's window. Then we'll give him quite a scare." Their tick-tacks o'er the window slid, and then the Tynmites ran and hid. The captain jumped and shouted "What is going on out there?"

"It's us," said Scouty. Don't be mean. Remember, this is Halloween." And then they scampered off to find another man to tease. "Ah, here's a sailor sleeping sound. With ticklers now let's gather 'round," said Copy. Then they tickled him until it made him sneeze.

As Others See It

THE WHISPERERS

(Hartford, Conn., Courant)

The chairman of the Republican National Committee, Dr. Hubert Work, deserves hearty commendation for his attack on the whisperers in this presidential campaign. His statement, covering the ground with great thoroughness, leaves little more to be said. Some of the periodical articles and anonymous publications which have come to his attention, he says, are so scurrilous that he would not willingly show them as an exhibit. He believes that "they must disgust any decent American," that "they are an offense to common decency" and that "every true American should and will resent such tactics."

Dr. Work points out that these articles are not directed against Governor Smith alone; they are also directed against Herbert Hoover. As "The Courant" said on May 11, "Every one who knows anything of politics knows that Mr. Hoover's presidential candidacy has been bedeviled by a whispering campaign in which vicious and libelous stories have been spread abroad in the effort to prevent his nomination.... If there is anything under the sun that Herbert Hoover has not been accused of by his political enemies, then it must be some new crime invented yesterday." We also said in that editorial, and the exaggeration was slight, that we had heard Hoover charged with being everything from a traitor to a superior type of horse-thief. When early in May Mr. Hoover appeared before the senatorial committee investigating campaign expenditures, to his astonishment and indignation he was even gravely asked whether he had recommended that the prices of chinaware be increased 15 percent and whether out of gratitude the chinaware manufacturers had contributed heavily to his campaign fund.

Dr. Work points out that this anti-Hoover whispering campaign did not end when Hoover was nominated, that letters are being sent "by presumably responsible persons in the opposition under seal of confidence, but intended to start whispering campaigns," and that some of this material has "been sent broadcast in certain sections of the country under the protection and privilege of the congressional frank."

The whispering campaign against Smith, like that against Hoover, probably will go on regardless of any statement from the headquarters of the Republican party, but Dr. Work makes it plain that it will not have the party's endorsement. He straightforwardly declares: "I cannot be too emphatic in saying that no personal attacks have been made either with the sanction or authority or knowledge of the Republican National Committee. We do not want to win votes on tactics that are opposed to every standard and tradition of our party. They are equally harmful to the candidate maligned and to his opponent and constitute an offense against public morals. Once and for all, I denounce all such activities as vicious and beyond the pale of decent political campaigning." That is plain talk and plenty of it. It is the sort of statement that we believe the great majority of the American people wish to hear.

But though it cannot be questioned that anti-Smith and anti-Hoover whispering campaigns are going full blast, it is easy to overestimate their effects on the prospects of the candidates. To believe the contrary is to believe that the bulk of the American electorate is composed of gullible dolls and bigots—queer doctrine to come from any one who professes to believe in our republican form of government. A large percentage of the electorate will vote for one of the candidates for the reason that he belongs to the party to which they claim adherence and which they believe to be best qualified to run the affairs of government. A large percentage of them will vote for Smith or Hoover because of the candidates' personalities and political records. A large percentage of them will vote for Smith or Hoover because of the candidates' position on the important issues of the campaign, of which there are many. But a small percentage of the remainder will vote for or against one of the candidates because of the charges of whisperers.

One of the fundamental issues which will determine many votes is the issue of prosperity. Millions of citizens will support one of the candidates and one of the parties because they believe that the level of prosperity is more likely to be maintained or raised under that candidate and party than under the opposing candidate and party. In fact, signs show that this will be perhaps the most powerful issue in the campaign as indeed it almost always is. That the Republican party realizes the importance of this issue is indicated by the manner in which it is emphasizing it. That the Democratic party also realizes its importance is indicated by the manner in which it is switching its viewpoint on a question as intimately related to prosperity as the tariff. The chances are that at least a thousand votes will be affected by this issue of prosperity to every one that is affected by the futile nonsense of a whisperer.

Election Board of Cleveland "Fired"

Cleveland, O., Oct. 30—(AP)—The entire Cuyahoga County election board was removed from office today by Clarence J. Brown, Secretary of State and the duties of the board were taken over by his office, for alleged irregularities in the August primary election.

Brown's action went beyond a recent recommendation of a special grand jury, in that it included Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, Democratic National Committeewoman from Ohio and a member of the board. The grand jury which last Friday charged the board with malfeasance and irregularities in the conduct of the August 14 primary, had excepted Mrs. Pyke from its recommendation that the remaining three members of the board and its employees be removed.

Poets' Corner

AUTUMN

The sad wind whistles through the pines
And hemlocks, bending low;
Around our little cottage twines
The woodbine vine no more.

The crimson, crisp and fallen leaves—
A blanket o'er the ground—
The oak-bough creakingly relieves
The death-like stillness all around.

Alas, where are the fluffy flowers
That gave their fragrance, free,
And brightened weary, waning hours
With faces turned toward me?

Close clinging to the cold stone wall,
The sentinel in its blue,
Defies the frosty air of fall
To nip his coat so true.

He rises in the early morn,
The first of all his friends,
And even holds the wind in scorn
With which he thus contends.

The robin, with his breast of red;
The saucy, twittering wren,
Have both to southern regions sped—
The chilly blasts come then.

The crow's defiant "Caw, caw caw!"
Comes floating from on high,
A she measures off the distance
To his home up in the sky.

The mother squirrel on haunches sits
And chatters to her young,
And teaches them to use their wits
The golden leaves among.

The keen, refreshing morning air,
The crystal, frosty night,
And crispy, stillness, should all care
Subdue, and finally put to flight.

The sunlight—Nature's rainbow nurse
With fingers tipped with gold,
Inflames the fleecy occidient
With wonders manifold.

The hazy skies, the scented air,
And all those signs so grand,
Fortell the breath of winter
And his jolly snow-ball band.

THE SQUASH DOLLIE

By Mrs. Charles Florabell Thorp

There are dollies from China and
dollies from France,
There are dollies that talk, there are dollies that dance.

There are little rag dolls, there are dollies of wood
There are dollies that sleep as a real person should.

With hair to be braided, and faces to wash—
But the dollie I loved was an old summer squash.

She lived far away in the sunny south
lot
Where the apple tree kept her from being too hot;

Oh, her funny green nose, and her
queer twinkly eyes,
And her dear crooked neck just for hugging so wise!

She would sit out all night in the rain and the dew
And wait till I came the next morning—she knew.

I made her a bonnet and sewed her
a dress,
She loved me just like her own mother, I guess.

For we had dinner parties and five o'clock tea,
And lived by ourselves as content as could be.

And when I went in, she would sit up so straight
While I waved a good-bye to her over the gate.

My little squash dollie is not living now.

It may have been chickens or maybe the cow.

I found her one morning; who do you suppose
Had eaten her, all but her seeds and her nose?

Oh, dolls may be pretty, with faces
that wash—
But I love her much better—my dear,
funny squash.

Assets of Electric Company Increased

Washington, Oct. 30—(AP)—Ex-

bits to show that the assets of the Electric Bond & Share Company had grown from $4,440,599 in 1906 to $124,195,442 in 1927 were introduced today in the Federal Trade Commission's power investigation.

Information on details of the company's financial condition was obtained by commission experts from the company prior to refusal of its officers last week to testify or produce records concerning its business.

Numerous tables, showing assets, liabilities, earnings, and surpluses, were submitted by the examiners and economists and entered for the record by Robert E. Healy commission counsel. These said that expenses increased from $48,232 to $6,613,973 from 1906 to 1927.

The surplus in 1906 was shown in the record as $581,161, and the 1927 surplus was placed at $21,039,062. The total earnings for 1906 were placed at $306,513, and for 1927 at $18,513,299.

The records said that profits from the sale of stocks and bonds had amounted in 1906 to $85,348 and in 1927 to $288,080.

Items of collections from subsidiary companies for various services, such as engineering and administra-

live services, were included after 1909. Receipts from this source that year were put at $29,279, and for 1927 at $8,084,956.

One of the witnesses, Smith W. Brookhart, Jr., a son of the Iowa Senator, who is employed in the economics division of the commission, produced a list of shareholders in the Electric Bond & Share Company who own more than one per cent of the voting stock. This also included similar shareholders in one or more holding or operating companies in the Electric Bond & Share group.

SCOUTS' LETTERS TO MR. WALGREEN SHOW GRATITUDE

Many of Them Wrote to Owner of Plane in
Thanks for Ride

Recently when the Boy Scouts of Dixon were given rides in Charles R. Walgreen's giant amphibian plane, "Wet and Dry," Mr. Walgreen taking that means of showing his appreciation of the Scouts' services on Walgreen Day, when the Dixon airfield marker, the Chicago man's gift to this city, was dedicated, the Scouts were asked to write a brief note to their host. Some of them follow:

Leland Berogan—I appreciated your ride very much and it was wonderful and interesting. It was very kind of you to let us ride in your plane. I enjoyed it very much. I thank you over and over.

John McGinnis—I want to thank you for the airplane ride you gave us boys Saturday. It was my first ride but it was wonderful. Some day I hope to be a pilot like Mr. Biffie.

Herbert Cooper—I am writing you this letter to thank you for the wonderful ride in your large plane. It was the first ride I ever had in an airplane and again I thank you because it sure was a wonderful ride. I guess I will have to close now.

James Dunning—I liked the ride in the aeroplane very much. When I was in the plane I wished my mother and father were there. They said they would like to go up in an airplane any time. I didn't know that an airplane could light on water and land. I think you had a good pilot. I made an airplane like yours and I think it is a good one. That was my first ride in an airplane. When I get big I am going to pilot a plane of my own.

Gilbert Frase—I liked the ride in your plane very much. It was the first time I ever rode in a plane and it was very thrilling and I want to thank you for the ride and your trouble.

Edward Sorbe—I sure enjoyed my wonderful airplane ride. It was the first one I have ever had and I am sure all the others enjoyed it, also, for they are still talking about it. The way it looks now they are never going to forget it, for I am sure I never will.

LaVerne Emmert—I appreciate your ride very much and hope I will have another just like it. You have an excellent pilot. I think very much of your airplane. I like to build little toy ones myself. I have one made like yours and am trying to make a Ford plane. Well it is getting late so I will have to close.

Charles McOrall—I enjoyed my ride very much and I have to thank you very much for it, Mr. Walgreen. It sure was funny when you got into those airports. Again I have to thank you, Mr. Walgreen.

Billy Keeslar—I want to thank you many times for the wonderful ride in your plane. This is the first time I ever rode in a plane and I enjoyed every minute of it.

Raymond Cupp—Am writing a letter to thank you for the airplane ride in the "Wet and Dry." Never before such a thrill.

Floyd Keller—I want to thank you for the airplane ride you gave my Scout friends and myself.

Robert Mossholder—Saturday when you were kind enough to give us Boy Scouts a ride in the "Wet and Dry" I had one of my greatest desires fulfilled. To say that I enjoyed it is putting it mild. I want to take this opportunity to thank you.

Albert Ridley—I enjoyed the airplane ride greatly. I wouldn't have missed it. All of the other boys liked it. Thanks a lot.

Lloyd Muzzey—I enjoyed my ride very much and I feel like I was still up in the clouds. I shall never forget it and wish to thank you for your kindness to me.

AN AMERICAN BOY TO HIS FATHER

Vote dry for my sake, father,
I'm asking the question here;
Which do you value the highest
Your boy, or whiskey and beer?

Your harvest will soon be gathered,
I really would like to know
If you had it all to do over,
What kind of seed would you sow?

Would it be the wild oats of revel?
Would it be the social gloss?
Say, what would be the example
You'd set for your lad and lass?

I am only a little laddie,
And you are a man full grown,
Your harvest is ready to gather,
While mine remains to be sown.

How best shall I plant the furrows
To reap in the coming years?
With seed that will bring you gladness,
Or seed I shall reap in tears?

I would like to be like you, father,
When I am a man full grown;
And to vote as you always voted,
And to sow as you have sown.

But I want to be clean and honest,
And vote a clean ballot, too;
Will I always be right, dear father,
If I vote the same as you?

I know you're a Christian, father,
And so on election day,
I'm sure for my sake and sister's,
You'll vote to keep liquor away.

So please vote dry for me, father,
The day is drawing near,
When you will choose by your ballot,
You boy, or whiskey and beer.

Father of Hanford MacNider is Dead

Mason City, Iowa, Oct. 30.—(AP)—
Charles H. MacNider, Mason City banker, died today of angina pectoris.

He was the father of Hanford Mac-Nider, former Assistant Secretary of War. The elder MacNider also was a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

MacNider was alone in his office,
taking over the telephone to Dr. W.
C. Egloff when he was stricken. Dr.
Egloff said MacNider suddenly ceased to speak and that he heard a thud as if someone had fallen. The body was found soon afterward.

He is survived by his widow and his son, Hanford, who in addition to being former Assistant Secretary of War, also is a former National Commander of the American Legion.

Hanford MacNider was in Chicago
this morning and left for Mason

City by airplane when informed of his father's death.

MacNider was president of the Northwestern States Portland Cement Co. in addition to being a director of a number of other concerns and president of the First National Bank here.

He was a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago since its establishment.

was the only witness at the hearing,
identifying them as her kidnapers.

HIGHER WAGES FOR TRAINMEN RECOMMENDED

Emergency Board Has Completed Study of Western Roads

Washington, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The emergency board appointed by President Coolidge to investigate the wage dispute on western railroads has recommended a 6 1/2 percent increase in wages without change of rules, or alternatively, a 7 1/2 percent increase if certain rules are eliminated.

Further, the arbitration board proposed that which ever alternative the railroads and train service unions accepted should be put into effect retroactively, and the terms made to apply as of May 1, 1928, a date on which the controversy developed.

The solution of the controversy
suggested dealt with the discussion of complicated rules governing the application of wage scales. hitherto agreed upon between the brother-hoods and the railroads. These have long blocked a settlement of the controversy. A number of these rules, upheld by the brotherhoods, have been viewed by railroad executives as unnecessarily hampering the efficiency of railroad service.

In consequence, the arbitration
board suggested that the conductors and trainmen take either the 6 1/2 percent increase in wages, keeping the present form of contract and rules, or that they obtain a 7 1/2 percent increase, conceding certain alterations in the standard rules. Specifically, the board mentioned the elimination of the present rule affecting the operation of trains with double-header engines, and the elimination of the present rule limiting the tonnage of freight on a single train.

Under the Railroad Labor Board procedure, the arbitration report made to President Coolidge must be considered by both the carriers and brotherhoods during a period of 30 days. Neither side may legally produce a situation resulting in suspension of operations during that period.
In case they accept the findings,
differences will be completely settled.

The report said that "considering the increases granted to other train service employees in the eastern, southeastern, and western districts
and despite the award of June, 1927, the carriers would not have been justified in refusing an increase similar to that granted the engineers and firemen of the western district."

It added that the carriers "were justified in offering an increase of 6 1/2 percent to the standard rates, containing, in addition to the rates
so increased, the existing differentials for mountain and other special service."

Is Proper Subject

"Considering the purpose and intent of the Railway Labor Act and the evidence presented", the report continued, "the question of the wage increase demanded and the differences arising thereon during the negotiations are proper questions for arbitration, if the spirit of the law is to to guide the action of carriers and employees.

"However, it is difficult to see this controversy should have arrived at a state where it could not be settled by mutual negotiations. At one stage or another of this long protracted dispute the carriers have offered 6 1/2 percent increase with no change of rules; and at one state or another the employees have expressed a willingness to accept 7 1/2 percent increase, with no change of rules.
The difference between these offers,
expressed in cents per basic day,
amounts to from 5 to 7 cents per day.
The board regards this difference as too small to justify an interruption of transportation in the territory affected.

Rules Are Issue

"Apparently the obstacle to a successful settlement has been the introduction, first by one side and then by the other, of certain controversies in regard to rules; and the effort of each party to change rules, as a basis of settlement, has somewhat beggared the wage issue.

"In view of the fact that the conductors and trainmen have at least once, if not twice, during the negotiations agreed to accept a flat percentage increase of wages, irrespective of any vital change in rules; and that the engineers and firemen in this same western district received an increase of but 6 1/2 percent (instead of 7 1/2 percent as in the east and 6 1/2 and 7 percent, respectively, as in the southeast), we have not given serious attention to the specific demands of the conductors and train-men for increases amounting to from 15 to 27 percent.

"If conductors and trainmen are to receive wages which are to place them on a truer level of engineers and firemen, such a change should be divorced from the present controversy and considered on its own merits, entirely apart from the present dispute.

ILLINOIS QUIZZES

Q—I remarked the other day to a friend that Illinois had more concrete road than any other state in the union. He answered, "Yes, and a bigger per capita bonded indebtedness than any other state due to those same roads." Can you tell me if that is true?

J. W., Bloomington.

A—Your friend is wrong. Illinois' per capita bonded indebtedness is $10.91. Compare that with $8.91 for South Dakota, $73.67 for Oregon, $53.74 for North Carolina or $32.02
for North Dakota. Illinois' per capita bonded indebtedness chargeable to roads is $13.24. And what have those roads done for land values?

HORNSBY WORTH $300,000 TO CHL. CUBS, SAYS HANK

Farrell Thinks Bill Wrigley Will Pay Record Price

BY HENRY L. FARRELL
NEA Service Sports Writer

The gentlemen who own the Chicago and Boston National League clubs are trying to get good business men to agree on what is a fair price for Rogers Hornsby.

For the purpose of getting some definite starting point for the negotiations it seems that the Chicago club placed a minimum value of $200,000 on the National League's greatest hitter.

William Wrigley, who owns the Cubs, was told by his subordinates that cash alone would not buy the transfer and that some players would have to be thrown in to make deal tasteful to the Boston customers.

Wrigley, according to the story, then instructed his agents to start the cash conversation at $200,000 and use their own judgment on the weight of human stock that had to go along to boot.

Trio in Trade Worth $150,000
The Braves are supposed to have mentioned casually that Maguire, Root and Webb would be treated kindly in Boston and there is $150,000 worth of material if you figure that an untired rookie such as Roy Johnson is worth $75,000 of Detroit money.

It might be figured conservatively that in the initial stage of the bidding Hornsby is at least a $300,000 ball player and Chicago will not bid on a higher price if Boston will listen.

Baseball men are practically agreed that Hornsby would be too much of a bargain at $250,000 to get in a day when gifts are no part of the national pastime.

Dissenting Voice From Hendricks
There will be one dissenting voice because at this time last year a cash appraisalment of less than a dime was placed upon the great Rajah by Jack Hendricks, manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

When the owners of the Giants decided that the club could prosper and be happy without Hornsby, Hendricks was summoned from Cincinnati and asked how much he would give for the man.

"Not a dime," Hendricks said. "In fact, I wouldn't have him on my ball club." But Hendricks will admit in his frank way that he has a great personal distaste for the player and those prejudices have been known to operate at the cost of pennants.

Several years ago the Brooklyn club threw the baseball world into a great stomach laugh by offering St. Louis $250,000 for Hornsby. It was worth a laugh at that time but Wilbert Robinson insists that the club made the offer in good faith and had the money to pay. The Brooklyn club is celebrated for its frugality but it got tough by being that way and it went for about $100,000 in the Dave Bancroft experiment that didn't work.

Indians Would Like Hornsby
Billy Evans says that the Cleveland club would pay $200,000 on the line without a tremble for Hornsby, but he knows that they couldn't get him out of the National League. The magnates are very wary in these days. Several years ago the Yankees had a chance to sell Wally Pipp to the Cincinnati Reds for $20,000. They asked wavers and Philadelphia claimed him. Ed Barrow and Connie Mack went into a huddle and the circumstances were discussed. Mack said he guessed Pipp wasn't worth more than $7500 to him and withdrew his claim. Joe Hauser broke his leg that season and if Mack had had Pipp to play first base he might have won the pennant.

There isn't a chance, of course, for Hornsby to get away from the National League. There are too many show horses in the American League now. Cleveland offered Uhle, Sewell and $17,500 last winter to the Yankees for Lou Gehrig and got a laugh. Later the club offered $100,000 to Washington for Bucky Harris and was comforted with the admonition to be yourself.

Would Mean Pennant for Cubs
Babe Ruth cost the Yankees what at the time was the staggering price of $125,000 and he has returned a dividend of perhaps 200 per cent on the investment.

Hornsby wouldn't be any such investment for the Cubs, but it seems to be agreed among baseball men that Hornsby ought to make a pennant winner out of the Cubs and that is what the Wrigley millions want.

It would mean something to the Wrigley firm to get a champion team because at some time during the period leading up to the world series some unethical reporter would violate a confidence and mention something about chewing gum.

And if you think this is a sap notion ask Sir Tommie Lipton if he didn't get all his dough back out of all those losing yacht races.

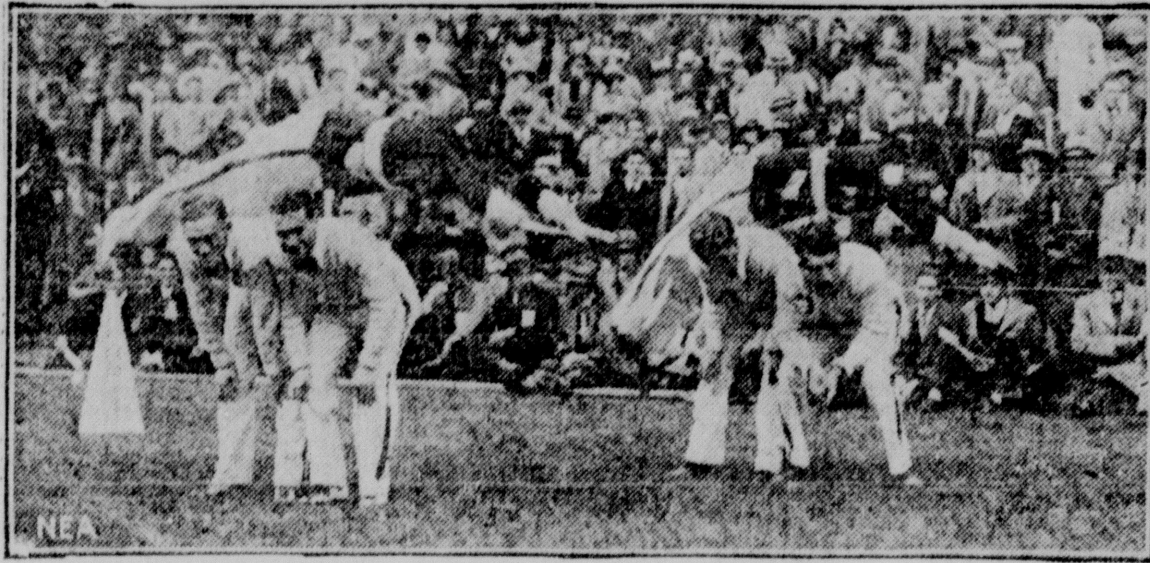

Ray Breaks Record to Beat the Champ

Philadelphia, Oct. 31—(AP)—Joe Ray, veteran American runner, was back at the head of the class today and with another record tucked away among his souvenirs.

El Quai, the slender French-Algerian Marathon winner at Amsterdam, fell victim to Ray's flying feet last night in a 16-mile indoor race which the American clocked off in one hour, 22 minutes and five seconds, which was announced as a new indoor record. El Quai was four and one half laps behind Ray at the finish, approximately one third of a mile.

News From Grid Camps of Large Schools of West

BY ORLO L. ROBERTSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
Chicago, Oct. 31—(AP)—The crimson tide, that globe-trotting eleven from Alabama, will receive its first taste of Western Conference football Saturday when Wisconsin and Alabama clash at Madison in one of three invasions of Big Ten circles by non-conference teams.

The game will be Wisconsin's first inter-sectional game since 1912 when the then championship Badgers routed Arkansas, 64 to 7.

The Princeton Tiger will stalk into the hall of Ohio State and the Pennsylvania Quakers will come west to meet the downtrodden Chicago Maroons.

Neither Princeton nor Ohio State has been defeated this season. Ohio has shown noticeable improvement in every struggle, and the team came out of the Indiana fray in excellent physical shape except for Leo Raskowski, veteran tackle, whose ankle was injured. Barring other injuries he probably will be the only regular not starting Saturday.

Despite four defeats optimism reigns at Michigan where the Wolverines are preparing for Illinois, so far unbeaten. Fielding Yost appeared on the field yesterday and shouted his famous "Hurry Up" as Tad Weiman worked to get more punch into the backs.

A search for Illinois' missing punch, apparent in the Northwestern game last week, has been made by Coach Zuppke this week. The Illini have been accumulating great amounts of yardage, although counting comparatively few touchdowns.

A. A. Stagg's thirty seventh Chicago football team may be down but it is never out. The "Old Man" is preparing for the Pennsylvania Quakers as if his Maroons were on top of the Conference instead of at the bottom of the percentage ladder. The hospital squad has been reduced to four men and two of these, Van Nice and Leyers, are expected to be in shape for action Saturday.

Northwestern will introduce two distinct field units Saturday in its attempt to break through Minnesota's powerful line at Dyer Stadium. Coach Hanley intends to start one combination of regular backs, then relieve them and give another set of erstwhile regulars a chance. Bill Griffin, 155-pound Sophomore, whose work against Illinois was worthy of mention, probably will get a selection on the regular quartet.

"Doc" Spears is trying to find a suitable substitute for Bronko Nagurski his crippled full back. It is doubtful if Minnesota's giant will be able to play, and Coach Spears will then probably rely upon Pharrmer, Westpal or Arende.

Field Looks Best of Welterweights

Los Angeles, Oct. 31—(AP)—Jackie Fields, with a crushing two round knockout over Sergeant Sammy Baker, New York's rock-fisted favorite, climaxing a long string of ring conquests, stood first in line at the door of King Joe Dundee's welterweight domain today.

To his home town folks, before 20,000 of whom he battered the hard punching Baker into insensibility in four minutes and 20 seconds last night, Fields theoretically was the champion of the welterweights. Fields recently whipped Jack Thompson, San Francisco Negro, just a short time after the latter had scored a quick knockout over Dundee in a non-title fight in the east. His victory over Baker, whom New York boxing authorities ranked as the division's chief challenger, was regarded as conclusive proof here that he is the best of the welterweights.

Giants Start Tide in Swapping O'Doul to Philadelphia

BY BRIAN BELL

Associated Press Sports Writer
New York, October 31—(AP)—Trading Lefty O'Doul to the Phillies for Fred Leach, the Giants started a trading season that probably will prove very brisk before the major league clubs assemble five months hence in the south and west for training.

That many others will follow seems a safe guess. Several teams are known to be dissatisfied with past performances of some of their highest priced players and the managers are prescribing a change of scenery.

Yanks Have Surplus
The Yanks have several players sitting on the bench most of the time who could take their places in the regular lineups of other clubs in the American League. An example is big Ben Paschal, the well known garage man of Charlotte, N. C. Paschal can hit, run and throw, three essential assets for an outfielder, but he can not crowd out Babe Ruth, Earle Combs or Bob Meusel.

If the mite manager of the world champions can find some club needing an outfielder and blessed with a fair pitcher as excess baggage a deal might be made. The Yankee infield may see some changes before another season starts. Joe Dugan's place at third base as a regular is not believed to be any too secure, although he can remain a Yankee subject to emergency call.

Walter Johnson, will have a chance to match wits with his new brother master-minds for the benefit of Washington and Stanley Harris certainly would like to do some juggling with the Tigers over whom he has assumed command.

Other Trade Rumors
The trade winds are believed to be blowing over that part of St. Louis set aside for the Cardinals, but President Sam Breadon has first say who is to conduct the negotiations. Bill McKechnie has not yet been re-elected for another term. At the same time he has not been defeated for the nomination.

The minors will go into action early in December when the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues holds its annual meeting at Toronto. From December 5 to December 7 the lobbies of the King Edward Hotel will be jammed with managers and presidents of clubs in 39 or more minor leagues willing to talk business and trade for money, marbles or chalk. The majors will be represented there also, but in the main the visiting managers from the American and National Leagues will be on hand as observers.

Every indication points to a record volume of baseball business before any more serious playing is done.

Former Dixonite in California Debate

Los Angeles, Oct. 30—The University of California at Los Angeles was represented in its debate with the University of Sydney, Australia, by one of Dixon's well-known graduates, Myron Smith. The debate was presided over by Milton Sills, motion picture star.

The affirmative of the question, "Resolved: That the World Would be Better off Without Motion Pictures," was upheld by the University of Sydney, while U. C. L. A. upheld the negative. The question over which "two continents locked horns" terminated in a no decision return.

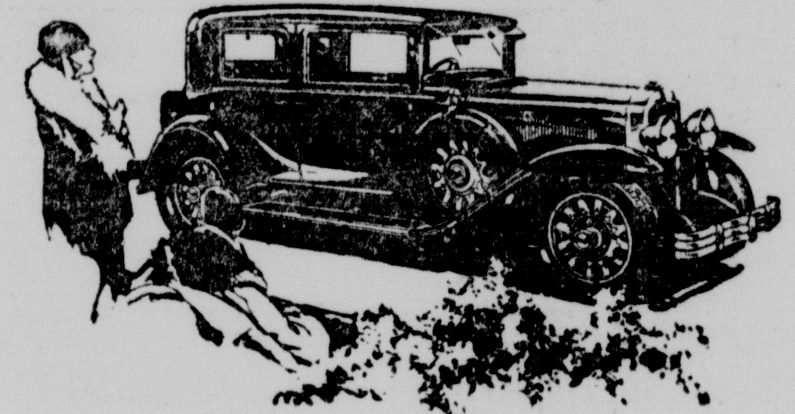

ARTIST WITHOUT HANDS
London—A recent industrial art exposition featured several specimens completed by John Buchanan, who was born without hands. His work has gained considerable favorable comment and many prizes. He works by holding his brushes between the stumps of the two arms.

WHAT SAY YOU?
Canton, China—A native gentleman, only 250 years old, offers these rules of life to the world: "Keep a quiet heart, sit like a tortoise, walk sprightly like a pigeon and sleep like a dog." He claims to have several friends even older than himself.

OGLE GRADING IN STATE WORK CONTEMPLATED

Bids Received Today on Large Amount of Road Work

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 31 — (AP) — Bids were to be opened here this afternoon on the contracts for construction of 63.56 miles of pavement, 29 miles of grading and a number of bridges and bridge sections. The pavement sections are divided among thirteen counties.

The longest paving section to be bid upon is one of 13.43 miles near Prophetstown on Route 92 in Henry county.

Sections, routes and counties follow:

Route 48, the Onarga-Litchfield route, section 113, Ford-Iroquois counties, 4.90 miles near Roberts; section 134X, Christian county, 1.69 miles near Taylorville.

Route 51, Wilton Center to Justice road, section 102, Cook county, 4.70 miles near Palos Park.

Route 68, Lake Bluffs to Wisconsin highway, section 126, Lake county, 4.85 miles near Roundout.

Route 69, from Joliet to Troy, section 121, LaSalle county, 5.10 miles near Troy Grove; section 122, LaSalle county, 5.10 miles near Troy Grove.

Route 72, the Sunset to Lanark road, section 113, Carroll county, 3.45 miles near Lanark.

Route 82, from Cambridge to Hoopville, section 128, Henry county, 13.43 miles near Prophetstown.

Route 130, Albion to Charleston route, section 123, Richland county, 3.20 miles near Parkersburg.

Route 147, Marion to Mound City way, section 121, Pulaski county, 2.61 miles near America.

Route 164, the Pekin to Danvers route, section 119, 5.71 miles to Tazewell county near Tremont.

Route 182, Marion county, section 101, 6.45 miles near Centerville.

Grading sections are in Ogle, DuPage, Jersey, Richland, Edwards, Jackson and Pulaski counties.

ROCHELLE NEWS

Rochelle—Rochelle gave a royal welcome for the Republican caravan here at 12 o'clock, Wednesday noon for dinner and a 1:00 o'clock meeting. Speakers who addressed the crowds were: Hon. Charles W. Hadley of DuPage County; Congressman William R. Johnson and District and County Officers. A large following joined the caravan at Rochelle. The Ogle County tour included a schedule of 15 minute stops.

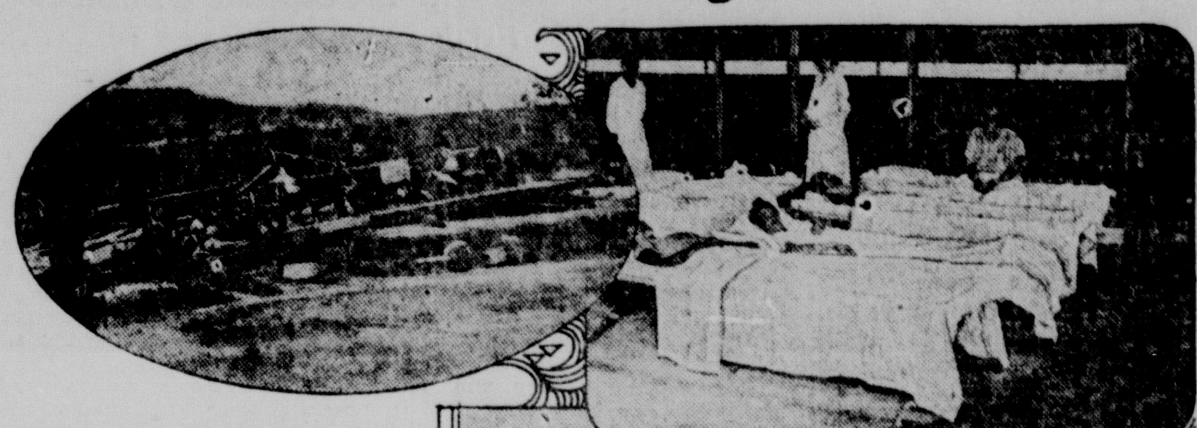

The celebrated Oregon German Band accompanied the campaigners. The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church held a Halloween party Oct. 30th. Members were given the privilege of inviting a friend who was eligible to membership in the society.

The Christian Endeavor society held its election recently, and now has the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Frances Lazier; Vice President, Charles Olson; Secretary, Louise Haselton; Treasurer, Helen Jones; Pianist, Helen Hamaker. The following are members of the social committee: Helen Jones, Josephine Southworth, Robert Russell, James Russell. The general theme of the society for November is stewardship and the leaders and specific topics are as follows: Nov. 4—"In what ways do we waste our time?"—Louise Haselton. Nov. 11—"What is being done for and against World Peace?"—Neil Jones. Nov. 18—"What the Practice of Stewardship would mean to the World."—Helen Jones. Nov. 25—"What have we to be thankful for?"—Frances Lazier. Two members of the society are moving to Texas, namely, Doris and Lois Ogle.

The schedule for the week in the city bowling league is: Class A teams—Monday, 7 p. m., Elks vs Whippets; Tuesday, 7 p. m., Dick's Cubs vs American Legion; Thursday, 7 p. m., Chrysler "75" vs Del Monte. Red Cross Disaster Workers Fight Disease and Hunger in Porto Rico

All that is left of a rural school in Porto Rico

"SEND an additional hospital unit."

"We need food."

"We need nurses and doctors."

Day in and day out these requests pour into the disaster relief headquarters at San Juan, Porto Rico, as the American Red Cross wages its fight against hunger and disease in the hurricane-swept island.

More than 20,000 persons are ill with typhoid fever, influenza and malaria. Nearly 500,000 are homeless and destitute, without food or shelter except that provided by the relief organization. Sugar cane, banana trees, citrus groves, and pineapple plants, their chief source of food and livelihood, are gone. Medical authorities and the public health officials of the little island, known before the hurricane for its exquisite beauty, say there is grave danger of serious epidemics.

These are the conditions which prompted the people of the United States to send their Red Cross to the aid of Porto Rico which while speaking a different language flies the same flag, has the same institutions, and cherishes the same ideals. Not more than eighteen months ago conditions were reversed, and Porto Rico sent aid to the United States. While not as large or as wealthy, she was one of the first to come to the aid of Mississippi Valley flood sufferers with a substantial contribution of funds.

Like gaunt skeletons of shell torn villages stand more than fifty cities and towns in the central and southern section of the island. Tobacco factories and sugar cane mills are damaged, adding unemployment to the woes of the population.

Working night and day, the Red Cross is sending a constant stream of supplies into the interior. Three hundred tons of food, a thousand tents, five thousand blankets, six thousand cots, a ton of medical supplies are no unusual one day distribution. The United States, even with its Mississippi Valley flood, has never seen a disaster in which a fourth of its population were homeless and destitute and where for weeks they will depend for life on outside aid.

The officials of the Red Cross at Washington point out that the people of the United States will be given an opportunity to endorse the disaster relief work in Porto Rico at the time of the annual nationwide Roll Call between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving, when an appeal is to be made for five million Red Cross members.

Forty Habits of Good Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

One of the most interesting documents for the average man is the health habit sheet by Drs. J. Maca Andress and I. H. Goldberger in a consideration of the essentials of healthy living.

In tabular form they have listed 40 health habits with special reference to pupils.

Any person may check up his health routine, and follow its progress from day to day.

These 40 health ideas should be kept in mind by every person interested in good personal hygiene. The list follows:

Posture

Small pillow used when sleeping. Stand tall. Sit erect with head up and chest lifted.

Books carried at arm's length and changed from one to the other. Shoes for school which do not cramp the toes and without high heels.

Food

Thorough chewing (mastication). Some raw food or fruit eaten daily. Some green vegetables eaten daily in addition to other foods.

One pint (at least) of milk, consumed daily.

No candy between meals. No coffee.

One glass of water upon rising. Four (at least) additional glasses of water during the day.

Exercise

Brief setting-up exercises before dressing and before retiring. No violent exercises immediately after eating.

One half hour (at least) each day of enjoyable recreation out of doors.

Cleanliness

Soap and water used daily for bodily cleanliness.

Hot bath at least once a week. Individual towel.

Hands and face washed before breakfast and dinner (also before lunch when possible).

Teeth brushed at least twice a day. Dental floss used at least once a week.

Finger nails cleaned daily, and not bitten.

Hair and scalp clean. Shampoo every two weeks.

Home Environment

Room temperature not over 70 degrees during months when controllable. Thermometer consulted.

Bedroom windows opened at night (screened in summer).

Steady and sufficient artificial light, when studying or reading and avoidance of glare.

Relaxation and Rest

At least eight hours sleep. Prevention of fatigue, when studying, by short rest periods.

Music (radio, piano, etc.) or games for recreation in the home.

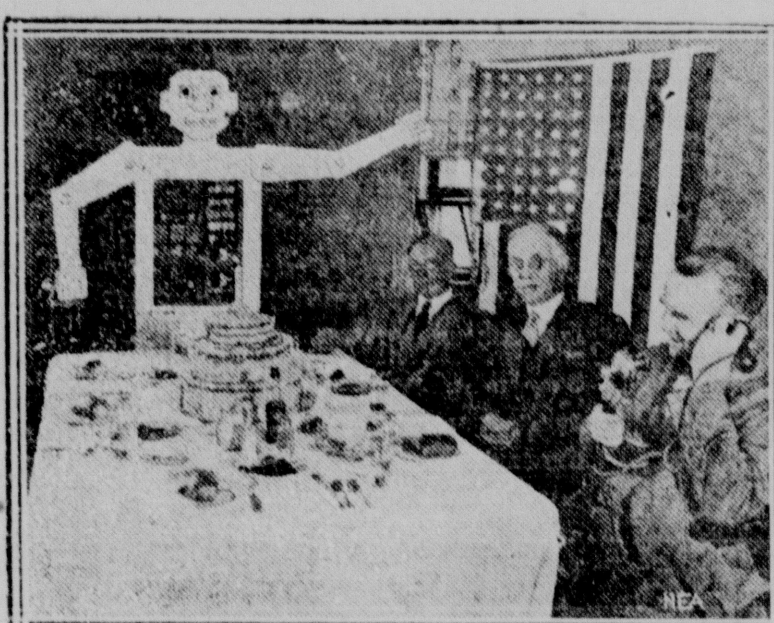

Avoidance in general of movies and parties, during the school week.

Regularity

Regular toilet habits. Rising in time to attend to all necessary details and breakfast without excessive hurry.

Meals at regular times.

Mechanical Man Guest of Honor

A good time was had by all when Mr. Televox, the mechanical man, was entertained at a birthday party the other day in the East Pittsburgh Westinghouse plant. The occasion was Mr. Televox's first birthday. At the birthday celebration, left to right, are F. A. Merrick, H. P. Davis and Roy J. Wensley, inventor of the robot.

Home study at regular times and in general not after 10 p. m. Concentration of mind on work when studying.

Attitude of punctuality to all engagements.

Co-operation

Annual health examination or medical attention to remediable defects, such as poor vision, flat feet, adenoids, etc.

Dental examination, cleaning and correction of defects at least every school term.

No smoking.

BISHOP RESIGNS

Washington, Oct. 30 — (AP) — The right Rev. Thomas F. Hickey, D. D., who has been ill for more than a year, has resigned as Catholic Bishop of Rochester, N. Y., and has been honored by Pope Pius by being named an Archbishop and being appointed to the See of Vincennes.

The Right Rev. Francis O'Hern, now at Rochester, who has been Vicar General, has been appointed apostolic administrator of Rochester.

Every purchaser
of a new Ford
is entitled to Free Inspection Service
for the first 1500 miles

THE modern automobile is a finely built piece of machinery and it will stand a lot of abuse. Considering the work it does, it gives surprisingly little trouble. But there isn't a car made that will not run better and longer if given proper care.

The first few hundred miles are especially important because that is when the mechanism of your car is being broken in. Proper attention during this period will lengthen its life and prevent unnecessary trouble later on.

We are particularly interested in this matter because we believe it is our duty not only to make a good automobile, but to help the owner get the greatest possible use over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

With this in view, the entire Ford dealer organization has been specially trained and equipped to service the new Model A car.

Furthermore, we have instructed every Ford dealer to give the following Free Inspection at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles:

Check battery
Check generator charging rate
Check distributor adjustment
Check carburetor adjustment
Check lights
Check brakes
Check shock absorber adjustment
Check tire inflation
Check steering gear
Change engine oil
Lubricate chassis

No charge is made for labor or materials incidental to this service, except, of course, where repairs are necessary through accident, misuse or neglect. The only charge is for new oil.

See your Ford dealer, therefore, and get this Free Inspection of your new car at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. Find out, too, how little it will cost to have your car given a thorough going-over at regular periods thereafter.

A periodic checking-up, together with oiling and greasing every 500 miles, will add months and years to the life of your car and mean more economical and pleasurable motoring every mile you drive.

LANSING, WORLD WAR SECRETARY OF STATE, DEAD

Heart Attack Caused the Death of Man Who Fought Wilson

(Picture on Page 1)
Washington, D. C., Oct. 31—(AP)—Robert Lansing, Secretary of State under Woodrow Wilson during the period of America's participation in the world war, died here yesterday, the victim of a heart attack.
The former secretary, who resigned from the cabinet after a rebuke from Mr. Wilson, had been ill four weeks. He died at 4:20 p. m. in his home in Eighteenth street. Mrs. Lansing and his two sisters, Kate and Emma, were at the bedside.
Dr. Sterling Ruffin, his physician, said death was due to myocarditis and that Mr. Lansing had become acutely ill after his return from his summer home at Henderson Harbor, N. Y.
The physician said the former secretary had suffered from the ailment for several years.

Robert Lansing, Secretary of State in President Wilson's cabinet from June 23, 1915 to February 13, 1920, held that office during one of the most stormy and trying periods of American history. Appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Secretary Bryan, he was confronted in turn, during his tenure of office, with the difficult problems arising from the position of the United States as a neutral power during the World War, the diplomatic activities of a belligerent nation, and the responsibilities of the ranking member, after President Wilson himself, of the American Commission to negotiate peace at Paris.

Had Dramatic End
The end of Mr. Lansing's term came dramatically in February, 1920, when President Wilson demanded his resignation on the ground that Mr. Lansing had usurped the Presidential authority by calling cabinet meetings during Mr. Wilson's illness. The exchange of letters between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing disclosed that for many months the President and his Secretary of State had not been in accord on foreign policies, and that the President demanded someone "whose mind," as the President wrote, "would more willingly go along with mine." It was recalled that the divergence of opinion had become pronounced during the Peace Conference in Paris. In testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, William C. Bullitt, an attaché of the State Department who headed a mission to Soviet Russia during the conference, declared that Mr. Lansing told him in Paris he did not agree with President Wilson in putting the covenant of the League of Nations and the Peace Treaty into one document. Mr. Lansing predicted, Bullitt read from his diary, that the treaty would fail if the American people ever learned of its full import.

Further evidence of the strained relations between the President and his Secretary was seen in the failure of the President to confer with Mr. Lansing after his return from a nation-wide tour in October, 1919, although he saw other cabinet officers and government officials.

Other Differences
The views of President Wilson and Secretary Lansing on the Mexican question also were at wide variance. A virtual ultimatum sent by Secretary Lansing to the Carranza government in connection with the case of Consul W. O. Jenkins was repudiated by the President when the issue was crystallized by the introduction in the Senate of a resolution by Senator Fall requesting the President to sever diplomatic relations with Mexico.

An international lawyer by profession, Mr. Lansing spent all the active years of his life in a diplomatic atmosphere. His father-in-law, John W. Foster, was Secretary of State in President Harrison's cabinet, the author of text books on international law and diplomatic usage, and Minister to China.
Mr. Lansing entered the State Department March 27, 1914, as counselor after having represented the government on arbitration commissions almost continuously since 1892 when he was made associate counsel in the Bering Sea arbitration.
He was born at Watertown, N. Y., October 17, 1864, was graduated from Amherst College (A. B., 1886, and was admitted to the bar in 1889, practicing law at Watertown three years.
Mr. Lansing was the author of "Government, Its Origin, Growth, and Form in the United States," and numerous diplomatic papers, as well as of songs, poems and several short stories.

Washington, Oct. 31—(AP)—The last of three figures that bulked large in the enunciation of American foreign policy during the critical days of the World War and the period that immediately preceded the great conflict has gone.

Having claimed Woodrow Wilson and William Jennings Bryan, death late yesterday overtook Bryan's successor as Secretary of State, Robert Lansing, who held the portfolio during the entire time that America was one of the belligerent nations and resigned upon receiving a rebuke from President Wilson.

News is Surprise
For several years, Mr. Lansing had suffered from a heart ailment described by his physician as myocarditis. For the last three days he was semi-conscious. The former cabinet officer had so withdrawn from public affairs that only a few knew of his critical condition and word of his death came as a surprise and a shock to official Washington generally.
Robert Lansing was a life-long student of government, diplomacy and international law. Bryan's celebrated break with Wilson, arising from a disagreement as to what the official American attitude toward the tragedy of the Lusitania should be, found Mr. Lansing holding the post of Counselor of the State Department. With Bryan's resignation, he was promoted to the cabinet and was faced at once with the intricacies of what already was a tense international situation.

Ends in Disagreement
As with his predecessor Mr. Lansing's tenure of office ended in disagreement with President Wilson. In Mr. Lansing's case the break was brought on, ostensibly, by his action in calling a meeting of the cabinet while the President was ill. A sharp exchange with his chief followed and when the documents were made public they included Mr. Lansing's resignation.
Mr. Lansing was 64 years of age. He was born at Watertown, New York, and was a graduate of Amherst College and a lawyer by profession. Before becoming actively connected with the State Department in 1914, he had represented the United States in connection with various arbitration treaties for more than twenty years.

SMITH IN NEW JERSEY
BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Oct. 31—(AP)—Another oddity will take its place in this campaign of oddities late this week when the Republican high command directs the party's vast field forces from general headquarters on a swiftly moving special train carrying Herbert Hoover to his California home.

Since the day of his nomination, the Republican candidate has had personal charge of the conduct of his fight for the presidency, and so it will be until the last shot has been fired and the army of voters begins to march upon the polling places.

When Hoover turns westward again tomorrow he will be surrounded by most of the advisers who have been almost constantly at his side in this greatest battle of his career.

Has Solid Shot
As his opponent is concluding a spectacular appeal for the votes of normally Republican strongholds in the east, Hoover will be firing some solid shot himself. He will deliver a major speech at St. Louis Friday night, and also will speak at noon that day and on Thursday and Saturday while his Democratic opponent is active in and around New York City.

Besides his political advisers, Hoover will be accompanied by Mrs. Hoover and their son Allan as well as Lewis Straus, of New York, secretary to the presidential candidate during the World War period.

There will be a corps of more than thirty newspaper correspondents and news photographers, the largest group that has accompanied the candidate on his transcontinental journey of which this is the third since he was chosen to carry the standard for the Republican party.

May Speak on Labor
What the Democratic nominee will choose for his text tonight in Newark had not been announced from the Smith camp today. It was considered, likely, however, that he would devote a good portion of the speech to an appeal to the laboring classes inasmuch as Herbert Hoover chose this topic for his Newark address.

Whether Gov. Smith will stick to his original plan to windup his speaking campaign in Madison Square Garden Saturday night or consent to make a final radio appeal to the electorate Monday night is a subject of much discussion around headquarters here. Although no official announcement has been made, it is understood that negotiations for a radio contract on election eve are proceeding with a view to having the hookup ready

Lip Reading is Finest Training

By Alice G. Bryant, M. D., Boston, Mass.

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. The headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 1331 G Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

The hard of hearing do not want special legislation; they do not want to be segregated; but they do want thoughtfulness, and the intelligence of a consistent unity of life in order to direct their forces for the achievement of their rightful education and successes.

Lip reading is a great onward movement in the new education of the hard of hearing.

The hard of hearing through lip reading secure their unhampered and rightful places in the great school of life.

Professional students of the problems of the hard of hearing are stressing the fundamental values of lip reading.

Lip reading for the hard of hearing means clear understanding, clear thinking and clear expression.

The hard of hearing should have the initial advantage of a common pupilship.

The education of the hard of hearing is not well balanced when lip reading is omitted.

The hard of hearing through lip reading become astute trainers of the powers of observation.

Through lip reading the hard of hearing will have richer living contacts with their comrades. Without lip reading they become intellectually maimed.

A keen sense of interest, sympathetic observation and long continued should the nominee decide to speak for the first time on the same night with his opponent.

BUSINESS NOW STANDING BY TO ASSIST FARMERS
President Chamber of Commerce of U. S. in Statement

Chicago, Oct. 31—(AP)—Business is standing by to assist in the stabilization of agriculture, William Butterworth, Moline, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, today told the Chicago Association of Commerce. The throes of depression in which some branches of farming finds itself are merely growing pains caused by the increasing efficiency and magnitude of modern production, he declared.

"It is as much the concern of business as of agriculture itself," he said, "that agriculture be prosperous. An awakening to the fact that those dollars which come from the creation of agricultural wealth are new dollars has established a new conception on the part of business men and they now regard it not only as an obligation but a golden opportunity to aid in enhancing the purchasing power of these dollars."

"Business, recognizing the subscribing to the principles of independence of agriculture and other industry, has not been content to stop there. It has translated that recognition into action. Chambers of Commerce and like organizations in all parts of the country are teaming with farmers to strengthen agriculture, the basic American industry."

The tendency to write a "blanket prescription" for all agricultural groups was the only issue Mr. Butterworth took with so-called "farm relief," he declared, for the problems which affect the cranberry growers of New Jersey would have little or no bearing on the problems of farmers growing wheat for export.

Something has happened to agriculture and to our manufactures," he said. "It is the working of a new industrial revolution. The truth is that many of the sore spots in American industry today are growing pains incident to an almost unbelievable increase in the efficiency of production. We cannot expect to progress as a nation without such growing pains."

Noted Clergyman on Air This Eve

The speaker to be presented over the Columbia network by the Republican National Committee this evening will be Dr. Daniel A. Pollag, clergyman of Boston, Mass. His campaign address in behalf of Herbert Hoover will begin at 7:30 and will be carried over a chain of radio stations including WMAQ, Chicago.

Rev. Pollag is the author of a dozen widely read books, some of which deal with his experiences in Europe during the World War and has for some time been president of the International Society of Christian Endeavor. His campaign address tonight will be broadcast direct from the Columbia studios in New York City.

NEVER BEFORE A REMEDY LIKE IT, SAY OF GLY-CAS

Prompt Relief, Lasting Benefits of Great New Compound Amazing to Dixon People.

Possibly never before has a medicine received such widespread and sincere praise as is now being accorded this great new vegetable compound, Gly-Cas, all over Dixon and vicinity. Hundreds of people know from actual experience that Gly-Cas is no more like ordinary present-day medicines than day is like night. Surprising statements continue to be received at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy in praise of Gly-Cas, such as the following:

"In my opinion, the highest praise I can give Gly-Cas is hardly enough in return for what this medicine has done for me," says Mrs. H. Hetler, 622 Hennepin Ave., Dixon.

"Several years ago I contracted rheumatism which settled in the joints of my body," she continued. "With the joints of my arms, limbs and shoulders so severely affected I could hardly get around at all. Parts of my body would sometimes swell twice their normal size and with all this pain and suffering I could get very little rest at night. As a consequence I was tired and listless through the day."

"I tell you, I was in despair of ever feeling better or ridding myself of the terrible rheumatism—that's why I feel that Gly-Cas has been of such wonderful value to me. It has been almost miraculous the way Gly-Cas cleansed my system of impurities and subsequently the rheumatism. In two months I have used three boxes of Gly-Cas and I feel better than I have for years. All the rheumatic swelling is gone from the affected parts and likewise practically all of my former pain and misery has ended. I sleep well now, have gained the most of my strength back and I just feel the highest praise for Gly-Cas is not enough."

Gly-Cas sold in Dixon at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy, Sold Franklin Grove, G. S. Ives, Polo, C. R. Clothier, Ashton, G. R. Charters, Amboy, Aschenbrenner, Drug: Compton, W. H. Hills, Rochelle, Barker & Sullivan and by leading druggists in all surrounding towns.

Red Cross Goal for 1929 Is Five Million Members

Our Greatest Mother
+ JOIN! +

If it were not for the American Red Cross and the prompt assistance it is prepared to render in emergency relief to the stricken, American people might well wonder what would be the aftermath when the four horsemen of death, disaster, disease and ruin ride across the skies laying waste vast territories in the United States, and claiming untold numbers of lives.

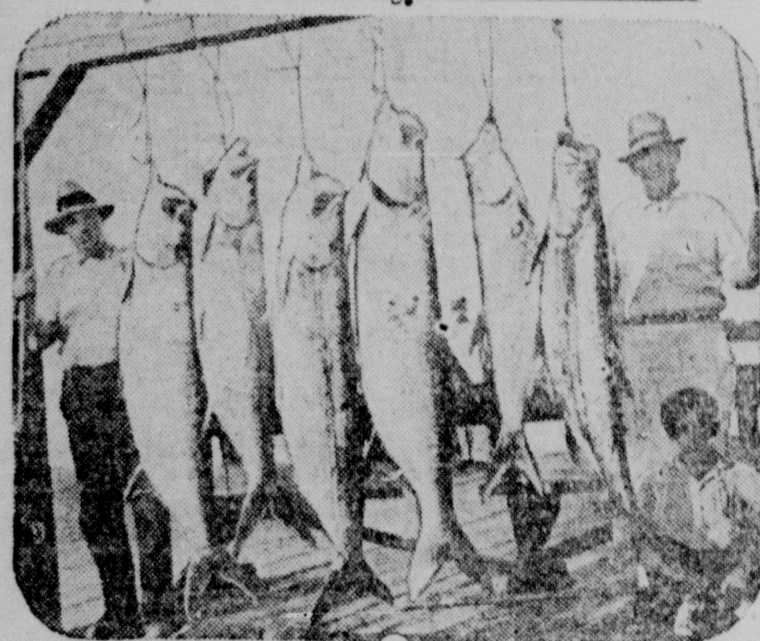

This thought is strikingly pictured in the Red Cross poster, painted for nationwide use in the Twelfth Annual Roll Call by Cornelius Hicks.

Only within a short period has the Red Cross responded to one of the greatest relief tasks in its career, when it was called into service following the West Indies hurricane, which struck Porto Rico and Florida and several small islands in the West Indies group. More than a half million men, women and children had to be fed, housed and clothed by the Red Cross, due to this terrific storm.

The loss of life in Florida was as great as had ever occurred in any catastrophe before in the history of the United States. This was the eighty-fifth disaster in which the Red Cross had been called into action, or for monetary aid in this year. This is the spectacular work which centers attention upon the Red Cross—but it should not conceal the year-round labor of the Red Cross nurse in public health work in rural communities; of the Red Cross nutritionist who carries to the school children of the nation the lesson of proper eating; of the Red Cross life saver and first aid instructor, who annually teaches to hundreds of thousands the lesson of saving human life; of the Red Cross teacher of Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, whose aim is to teach home care of the invalid; of the Red Cross worker who, ten years after the Armistice, still carries on for the world war veteran. Under the Red Cross banner also is fostered the Junior Red Cross, with a membership of 6,000,000 American school children.

For the support of these activities the American Red Cross needs 5,000,000 memberships, and has set its goal for that number during the Roll Call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving day—November 11 to 29.

STATE BANQUETS OF HISTORY WERE NOT DRY AFFAIRS

Presidents of Early Days Liked Their Liquor Muchly

Washington—The presidential campaign of 1928 may turn, in part, on the attitude of the respective candidates toward prohibition. But it was only a few years ago, as the history of the country runs, that the general public was chiefly concerned over the question, "Would the common people get a chance to swig at the presidential wines during the White House receptions?"

The White House, in its day, has sheltered some notable cellars and some notable drinkers. And it has seen some notable parties.

A century or more ago it was the established custom for presidents, at White House receptions, to furnish vast quantities of wine for all free-born citizens who cared to attend. Immense wine bills were run up in some of the early administrations.

It is noteworthy that in 1837 President Martin Van Buren was bitterly assailed in Congress—because he had discontinued the custom of serving wine to all comers at public levees.

Washington Fond of Wine

George Washington, the first president, was highly fond of wine, and the White House wine bill for his two administrations was $10,000. A White House historian remarks that "he made constant use of wines on his table and upon all occasions, though moderation and method were the precept and principle upon which he conducted his private and public affairs."

Thomas Jefferson's two terms saw the government spending another $10,000 for wines for the White House. A list of the wines upon which the president paid import duties in 1801 follows:

Three pipes of Brazil Madeira. (A pipe of wine was a barrel containing 141 gallons.)

One pipe of Pedro Ximenes Mountain.

One-quarter cask of Trent.

A keg of Parafette d'oux.

Fifty dozen of claret.

Forty-five dozen of Sauterne.

In 1803 the White House wine list included 500 bottles of champagne, two and one-half pipes of the wine of Oeyras and 294 bottles of Chamberlain Burgundy.

Jackson's Wet Inauguration

Stories of the vast amounts of liquors consumed at Andrew Jackson's first inauguration, when hardy frontiersmen of unlimited capacity swarmed to see their hero take office, are well known. Among the various inaugurations presents given Jackson at the time by the various states was a gift of whisky from the state of Pennsylvania.

Jackson was not the only one to stage an impressive (from a liquid standpoint) inaugural ball. A contemporary writer remarked that "wine flowed like water" at the inauguration of President Tyler, while the wine bill for President Buchanan's inaugural ball was $3000. A historian of the early 19th century remarked that at one of President Madison's White House dinners, "comment on the quality of the wine seems to form the chief topic after the removal of the cloth."

The White House, incidentally, was not the only place in Washington where there was free and easy drinking. The legislative chambers of the capitol saw plenty of it; it is recorded that the last session of the house in 1849 was a regular orgy of intoxication, with a number of solons being carried out, comatose, at the conclusion of festivities. Until a generation ago there was a bar in the basement of the capitol, almost directly under the dome.

Grant Starts Dry Move

It was not until after the Civil War that public sentiment began to frown on drinking in the White House. Oddly enough, it was President Grant, known for his fondness for whisky, who started the temperance move in the White House. He discontinued the age-old custom of serving White House attendants with liquor on New Year's Day, substituting coffee.

Rutherford B. Hayes actually made the White House "bone dry" during his term. Mrs. Hayes was a teetotaler and Hayes remarked: "We had never used liquor in our own home, and it was determined to continue our home custom while in Washington. I was not a total abstainer when I became president, but the discussion which arose over the change at the executive mansion soon satisfied me that there was no halfway house in the matter."

Liquor Again Returns

The policy did not last, however, succeeding presidents returning wine to its place on the White House menu. In the first administration of President Cleveland, at a dinner to the chief justice of the supreme court, nine wine glasses stood at each plate. Seven wine glasses per plate were noted at one of Cleveland's dinners to his cabinet.

Wines and liquors continued to be served at White House dinners and receptions down to the advent of the national prohibition law, when the practice, of course, stopped. It is noteworthy, however, that it is many a year since the White House has had an occupant who indulged in drink more than occasionally.

A menu for a White House dinner during the Taft administration, after listing an elaborate spread of eatables, concludes with the words, "wines, sherry, hock, champagne." Mrs. Elizabeth Jaffray, White House housekeeper for 20 years, has preserved a card listing the wines and liquors served at a state dinner in 1917, when President Wilson was in office. It includes 18 quarts of champagne, two quarts of claret, five quarts of hock, two quarts of sherry, two quarts of Scotch whisky and a quart of brandy.

Toombs Examination Goes Over to Nov. 12

Chicago, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Pending possible grand jury action, Federal Judge James H. Wilkinson today continued to November 12 the examination into the affairs of the bankrupt brokerage firm of Toombs & Daily.

Roy S. Toombs, president; C. R. Daily, treasurer, and C. E. Clark, vice-president of the concern are now under bonds of $20,000 each pending a hearing on charges of using the mails in a scheme to defraud. In addition Toombs is wanted in St. Louis to face other charges in connection with his financial manipulations.

E. J. Hess, Assistant United States District Attorney, said he needed more time to go through evidence submitted by Garfield Charles, Receiver in Bankruptcy, and added that he is preparing to present the evidence to the federal grand jury.

4200-MILE PADDLE

New Orleans—Two University of Montana journalist students, Thomas Duncan and Walter Burrell, have completed a 4200 mile canoe trip on the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. The unique vacation journey required nearly three months.

A WALKING RECORD

London—A record walking mileage of 200,000 is credited to Miss Clay, Flintshire, who served as an auxiliary "postman" for 40 years. She recently retired under the age limit law, but she could have gone on serving her territory for many years more.

ILLINOIS TOWNS WITH AIRFIELDS ARE INCREASING

Has 57 Completed and 31 More Projected or Under Way

Washington—The rapid growth of airports in Illinois was pointed out as justifying much local pride by the aeronautical division of the department of commerce here today. The latest compilation, it is indicated, lists 57 completed airports in the state of Illinois, and more than thirty additional fields either proposed or under construction.

Of the fields already constructed, five are equipped with rotating beacons and partial or full equipment of flood lights for landing, the department stated. The fields equipped with these devices, which are considered the "latest" in airport efficiency, are at Springfield, Moline, Peoria, and two at Chicago. Seventeen of the other fields in Illinois are listed by the department as intermediate fields along airways, marked and lighted by the department of commerce. The remainder are full-fledged municipal airports, with the exception of Scott Field at Belleville, Chanute Field, Fort Sheridan, and the Great Lakes Naval Air Station. Some of the cities which have sites for airports in the "proposed" category are Rockford, Streator, Quincy, Danville, East St. Louis, Olney, Galesburg, Morris, and others, the department reported.

For the country as a whole, the department estimates that there are 386 municipal airports, 340 private and commercial airports, 256 intermediate, or department of commerce fields, 62 army, including national guard and reserve fields, seventeen navy, including the Marine Corps, 229 marked auxiliary fields, and 890 proposed airports.

Thus, there are altogether 1387 airports of various types in the United States, excluding an estimated 4000 more fields upon which landings may be made in an emergency. The Illinois total of 57 when compared with the total for the country shows that this state has less than five per cent of the whole, but somewhat more than the average for each state.

In the number of fields established Illinois is outranked by only three states, California, Pennsylvania, and Texas, the departmental report shows. In point of sites proposed for airports, Illinois is also among the first few states.

A FINE MESH

Newark, N. J.—The finest mesh wire in the world, having 160,000 square openings per square inch, has been made here. It is known as "400-mesh" wire cloth, having 400 parallel wires per inch of width running each way, at right angles.

Mendota Men Land in LaSalle Cells

LaSalle—Charged with disorderly conduct as the outgrowth of a head-on collision of two automobiles in LaSalle, at about 8 o'clock Sunday evening, Homer Withrow of Mendota, was fined $5 and costs and his companion, also a resident of Mendota, was fined $5 and costs after a hearing before Police Magistrate A. C. Kidd Monday morning. Judge Kidd said he did not have the names of the other men.

Withrow's machine, a Ford touring car, collided head-on with a Ford sedan driven by Reuben Richert, of Route 3, Mendota, with whom four other persons were riding, as the two cars met at the street intersection. The front portions of both machines were considerably damaged and several of the occupants of the Richert automobile suffered slight bruises and cuts.

Richert was arrested and placed in the city bastille.

Charles Gillette and Richard Boyle

of Mendota, and Ben Derix of LaSalle who were riding in the Richert car were taken to St. Mary's hospital where their wounds were dressed. Gillette suffered an injured eye, Boyle had a gash across his forehead and Derix's lip was cut.

Iowa Bank is Robbed

Waverly, Ia., Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Waverly State Bank was robbed of from $1500 to $2,000 today at 10:30 a. m. by four armed men, who held up the employees and escaped in an automobile.

Three of the men armed with sawed off shotguns, entered the bank and forced the employees to lie down on the floor, while the fourth stayed outside in an automobile.

It was believed that the bandits started toward Waterloo.

Westminster Cathedral, London's greatest Catholic Church, cost $1,250,000 to build, but including the elaborate decorative designs in mosaic, when completed, $10,000,000 will have been spent on it.

PLAY SAFE

We have a radiator alcohol glycerin mixture for your car that will save you money this winter. The large amount of glycerin in this mixture prevents the alcohol from vaporizing, consequently you are playing a safer game with your car by having this mixture in your radiator. If you have used straight alcohol you wondered many times if your radiator was safe from freezing.

This mixture costs very little more than straight alcohol, as it lasts at least three times as long as alcohol it is a lot cheaper than alcohol to use, and its just as safe to use as alcohol in regards to your motor or radiator. So do the safe thing and use the safe radiator non-freeze. All alcohol and glycerin mixtures are not the same. We buy this well-known brand because we honestly believe it is the best on the market and we want our customers to have a satisfactory product. We are not here to gyp anyone.
